

Erratum

Erratum: Tribble C. Humming While We Work: Reflections on Music in the Operating Room. The Heart Surgery Forum. 2025; 28: E228–E236

Curt Tribble^{1,*}

¹Division of Cardiothoracic Surgery, University of Virginia School of Medicine, Charlottesville, VA 22908, USA

*Correspondence: ctribble@virginia.edu (Curt Tribble)

Submitted: 12 March 2025 Revised: 11 April 2025 Accepted: 14 April 2025 Published: 17 April 2025

The article by Curt Tribble entitled, “Humming While We Work: Reflections on Music in the Operating Room” (The Heart Surgery Forum, 28(2), E228–E236. <https://doi.org/10.59958/hsf.8431>) [1] was published online 24 February 2025 with one error.

On page E231, the “Optimizing the Ambiance of the Operating Room” section, line 5, the sentence “While the physical aspects of managing the environment in the odds ratio (OR) are important,” should be changed to “While the physical aspects of managing the environment in the operating room (OR) are important,”.

This has been corrected as of April 15, 2025. The authors declare that the correction does not change the results or conclusions of this paper. We sincerely apologize for having this error in the article, and any inconvenience caused.

Reference

- [1] Tribble C. Humming While We Work: Reflections on Music in the Operating Room. The Heart Surgery Forum. 2025; 28: E228–E236. <https://doi.org/10.59958/hsf.8431>.

